SIX REASONS WHY NURSES CHOOSE GALVESTON REASON NO. 6

THE COMMUNITY

"I like the people here. They remember your first name."

The words of a Galveston nurse tell the story of our community. It is more than an island in the Gulf of Mexico. It is more than Victorian architecture, semi-tropical climate and open beaches. It is a pleasant place to live and work.

Nurses are attracted to our eight university hospitals, but they stay because of our friendly community.

There are more reasons why nurses choose Galveston. Write for them today.

The day sweet, gentle
 A. Beale,
 R.N., turned on her hospital.

After years of quiet, efficient service at Typical General Hospital, Amelia finally blew her stack. The pressures were too much. Rotating shifts. Floating assignments. Covering for vacancies. Getting bogged down with clerical and aides' chores. Inadequate orientation and training. A constant parade of new supervisors. Conflicting instructions. A nagging feeling of anonymity.

Then she heard about Overlook Hospital. A 600-bed progressive, university-affiliated teaching hospital with a stable, ample staff (500 nurses, 300 doctors, 2,600 volunteers), friendly supervisors who take a personal interest, extensive education programs, job posting and promotion-from-within policy, helpful unit managers who see to the non-nursing tasks, affluent suburban New Jersey location not far from New York City.

So she came to Overlook and lived happily ever after.
